Hi Wayne,

On NPR this morning, I learned of a decision in the Seattle Region to issue a complaint against Boing for giving work manufacturing a new airliner to a non-union plant in South Carolina rather than a Machinist represented plant in washington State.

I wanted to learn a bit more about the case so I did a little noodling around on the internet. I came across a couple stories in local media outlets in South Carolina, including the one attached. I admit, the headline got me curious: Boeing finds an unexpected ally.... who might that be, I wondered. If you don't have time to read it, I will give you the answer:

John Raudabaugh, a friend of organized labor if ever there was one.
