

Microsoft Outlook

---

From: R.Ahearn personal email - Exemption 6 - Privacy
Sent: Saturday, December 11, 2010 2:17 PM
To: Ahearn, Richard L.
Subject: An article from www.thestate.com

---

Ricardo has sent you the following story:

---

Posted on Thursday, Dec. 09, 2010

Union opponent tapped for labor chief

By JOHN O'CONNOR

Gov.-elect Nikki Haley has moved to protect Boeing Co., the state's recently arrived aerospace giant, nominating a union-fighting attorney to head the agency that oversees business licensing, professional boards and the labor law enforcement.

Haley said she chose Charleston attorney Catherine Templeton — whose Ogletree Deakins bio lists "union avoidance" as a specialty — as director of the Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation to prevent organized labor from gaining a foothold in the 787 Dreamliner plant now under construction. Boeing executives said South Carolina's anti-union history was a key factor in their decision to open a new plant outside their long-time home in the Seattle area.

"I think we're going to have a union fight as we go forward with Boeing," Haley said in announcing Templeton's nomination.

Read More...