Re: Cause of Action v. Internal Revenue Service
No. 13-920 (U.S.D.C. D.C.)

Dear Ms. Burrows,

Today, the Internal Revenue Service is filing its motion for summary judgment in the case named above. During this litigation, the Service has reconsidered some of the redactions made to the 790 pages of records released to Cause of Action during the administrative process. The enclosed disc includes those 790 pages, with some redactions removed, as well as three additional pages that the Service is disclosing in response to Cause of Action's October 9, 2012, request under the Freedom of Information Act.

The enclosed document is Bates stamped, in accordance with the Service's motion and the declarations submitted in support of that motion. Please note that the Service did intentionally release the text that is outlined, but not redacted, on the following pages: IRS000392, 398, 402, and 409.

Please let me know if you have any difficulties opening the .pdf file on this disc, which contains 793 pages of records.

Sincerely yours,

NORAH E. BRINGER
